

The EAP Supervisory Consultation

In addition to counseling and other services for employees and qualified dependents, AllOne Health's Employee Assistance Program (EAP) also provides a unique benefit for our managers and supervisors: the Supervisory Consultation

You can call the EAP to obtain assistance with a variety of employee-related issues, including responding to employee disclosures of personal problems, strategizing for performance discussions, and referring employees to the EAP. This benefit is not a substitute for your personnel policies and procedures, but is another resource to help you with challenging employee situations.

This benefit is easily accessible by calling the EAP at 800.451.1834, Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Simply ask to speak with the next available counselor for a supervisory consultation. Your conversation with the EAP counselor will be collaborative in nature. The counselor will inquire about your specific employee concerns, review any steps you have already taken, and explore various options with you that you might consider in addressing these concerns. The counselor can also help you deal effectively with your own feeling of stress regarding the particular employee situation. This conversation is confidential – no one from your organization will know you called the EAP unless you choose to tell them.
